As I sit here in Okinawa in my dining room looking out my patio window, I see the sun shining through the clouds onto the water below. I remember the times as a young boy you telling us kids that those beams of light were God's way of coming down to take his children home. This day God has come to take one of his most faithful servants, a man who has never wanted for himself but only for others, a man's true meaning of life was to simply give life and a man who was willing to live in pain for the last three years so that his children would not suffer one day of pain at the time of his passing. In my thirty years of military life I have never come across a man whose life was so simple but meant more to those he came into contact with than my father. Dad you have always been in my thoughts and in my heart and will remain there until we meet again, your passing is this world's greatest loss. I Love You

Well dad, it was tough saying goodbye to you today but I wanted you to know how proud I am to have had you as a part of mine and my family life while you lived with us. I'll never forget the nights me and you would sit and watch war movies together and when you, Wendi and I would go out to eat every Thursday together, very special times. Tell mom I said hi and tell my mom and dad we said hi and love them and miss them too. If we hear thunder tonight, that means that all four of you are cutting up up there and having fun, ( HA HA ). love you, miss you and hope to see you someday, Love Rob.
