Ron Bozek posted:

Mrs. Sabol was my first supervisor at Marymount in the late 1970s. I was a nursing assistant at the time, and new to the healthcare field. I'm sure I tried her patience on more than one occasion due to my lack of experience. But thanks to her example, and many other nurses that I worked with, I became a nurse myself. I only hope I have been half as good a nurse as she was. I regret never having the opportunity to thank her. Rest in peace, Mrs. Sabol, and may you hear the Lord say "Well done, good and faithful servant; come, share your master's joy" (Matthew 25:23). And I wish all her family and friends peace at this sad time. May you find comfort as you cherish your memories, and have the love and support from others that you need.
